Architectural contest

In February 2009, we launched an international competition to build the bauhaus lab marseille structure. The aim was to rearrange a space following a reinterpretation of the principles of the Bauhaus. This polymorphic place should host multimedia artist workshops, lectures about interdisciplinary, multimedia workshops for children, and an art exhibition in the “Maintenant” space from La Friche de la Belle de Mai.

The Jury members were the architects Matthieu Poitevin and Rémy Marciano, Thierry Ollat, director of the Contemporary Art Museum of Marseille (MAC), Patrick Bardou from Editions Parentheses, and Stéphane Moginot a member of Mécènes du Sud.

More than 200 persons from all over Europe applied to the competition and we received 60 different kinds of propositions making the participation rate very successful.

Les Coffres à Jouer, from the French agency Juste le Cabinet, was the winner project of the competition.

Architectural Exhibition

On June 2009, the MAV Paca, a very well known architectural institution from Marseilles, decided to host an architectural exhibition with the seven best projects from bauhaus lab marseille architectural contest. During three weeks, more than 500 visitors came to see the models and A0 boards from the seven best projects. Local and international press releases announced the exhibition, and the winners from Juste le Cabinet gave a lot of interviews.

Art Residency

European artists, Kai-Oi Jay Yung (UK), Hansjörg Köfler (Switzerland), Irene Pätzug (Germany), Enrico Freitag (Germany) and french artists Wilson Trouvé, Emmanuelle Gibello, Javiera Tejerina-Risso and François-Alexis Degrenier were finally selected and worked in situ.

Eigenheim gallery curator from Weimar, Konstantin Bayer, worked in close range with the artists and took care of the artistic overview and general look of the art exhibition. During three weeks, between August and September 2009, artists made their artwork, follow lectures, and offer multimedia workshop for children's.

Art Exhibition

From 10th to 26th of September 2009 and together with Marseilles art fair ART-ORAMA and other art institutions from the south of France we made our art exhibition “Water drops, we run” in la Friche de la Belle de Mai. More than 3500 persons visited this exhibition and got good press coverage.

Our project participated to the European Heritage Days in Marseille.
